

Welcome to a hybrid course where you will be able to participate either online from your home or physically at the Martinus Centre, Klint, Denmark.

The course will give you an overview of the Danish writer Martinus and his life and works with particular focus on the process that Martinus called his “cosmic initiation”, which took place 100 years ago in 1921.

We will go through some of the fundamental principles of his spiritual world picture. There will also be opportunities for mutual reflection and dialogue about the significance of Martinus’ analyses for us today in our everyday lives.

Practical information

We will meet on 4th June at 19.00/7pm. Those attending onsite will meet in Pavilion C. Those attending online will check in on Crowdcast, where you will also listen to the presentations. The group talks will take place on Zoom, with a camera and a microphone enabling participants from both groups to see and talk to one another. Tea and coffee will be served in Pavilion C.

All times mentioned are Central European Time (CET).

Martinus Cosmology – 100 years

Mary McGovern, Solveig Langkilde and Pernilla Rosell

"For Christ had not prophesied a new leader or spiritual dictator, but a high-intellectual analysis of life's greatest problems or the solution to the mystery of life itself in such a way that every human being becomes its own Christ. The fact is that such an analysis is nothing other than the holy spirit."

"My analyses constitute a coherent series of thoughts that is evident to the intelligence. It not my mission to be a messiah, a new Christ, a new world redeemer in the ordinary sense. [...] I want freedom for all beings to think and reason for themselves and to become their own world redeemers, their own Christ. [...] The solution to the mystery of life becomes a theoretical fact for the being. No belief and no suggestion are demanded. My work gives the being knowledge." (Martinus, "Spiritual Science")
